

During the last fortnight, several large swordfish have been swimming about the harbor and six or seven have been captured.

There have been no Gloucester vessels in port recently. The last one was the Marguerite Capt. Hemeon reported having found fish scarce.

Engineers are taking soundings at the northern and southern sides of the harbor for the Cape Breton Coal & Iron Co., who intend to build a railway and a pier here for the shipment of coal.

Quite a number of American tourists are visiting Cape Breton and several have been here to look at the ruins of the once high walls and imposing ramparts which have made Louisburg an historical spot.

The weather has been very unsummerlike, but this week has seen a change for the better.
